His friends laugh at him because he would rather read than play video games, but his parents and his teachers are proud of him. They say reading is important, and it will help him learn about the world around him.

One day, Max was reading a magazine article about volcanoes. He told his friends all about volcanoes and what causes them to erupt and send fire and smoke. The very next week, his class was assigned a science project about volcanoes. Guess who everyone wanted in their project group? Max ended up being in a group with Tim, Hank and Josh. The project was to create a poster with information about volcanoes and to build a volcano model. So, the group went to the library to look for more information about volcanoes. They met at Hank's house that night to organise the information and decide what they wanted to put on the poster board. They all asked Max what he thought was most important.

The second night they met at Josh's house to build their volcano. They used cardboard and modelling clay. The volcano looked great. Max, Tim, Hank and Josh were very proud of their hard work. When they turned in their project, their teacher was proud, too. Thanks to Max's good habit, they earned an A+ on both parts of the project.
