- Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions that follow:

In a village near a river, there lived a small boy called Ahmad. He was a very helpful boy. After school, he usually went to see an old man who lived alone. He would help him clean his house and would do the shopping for him.

One evening, he was walking close to a wall that was built to protect the village from the flood on rainy days. As he was moving his hand along the wall, he noticed that there was a hole, which allowed small amounts of water to come out. The boy knew he had to tell others about it because the hole would get bigger and the village would be in danger. Ahmad ran up and down the road to tell someone about it. He was worried and afraid. He ran back to see the hole. He tried to plug the hole using a small rock. But it did not stop the water from coming out. Then, he used his hand and pushed hard. The leak stopped. He was very happy that he could protect his village.

He thought his mother would send someone to find him. His mother did not know what her brave son was doing. Later, as night came, he felt cold, but he knew he could not go home. If he removed his hand from the hole, water would start leaking again. He waited till the morning when two men saw him. They told others about what the brave boy did.
