Clothing is something we all should wear regardless where we live and who we are. Clothes are easily accessible and can be bought in most high street shops. Supermarkets are also beginning to sell clothes. Clothes are for keeping people warm or serving as protection from the strong burning sun. Certain items of clothing can be expensive, especially if they are made by a well-known brand. While clothing is affordable for most people, the price usually depends on the quality of the material used.

There are factors that affect the type of clothing people wear. These include the place, the culture of the society, the occasion and the weather conditions. Here in Kuwait, people still wear the traditional dress because it's a comfortable part of their heritage and reflects our Islamic culture. The type of clothing we wear usually depends on the occasion. People that attend a wedding usually wear formal clothes. Men often wear suits and women wear dresses. Firemen wear special clothes that protect them from dangerous conditions like fires and smoke. Other jobs are less strict and may allow people to wear casual clothes. Construction workers are usually asked to wear protective clothing, especially when the site is considered highly dangerous.

People often choose to wear comfortable clothing inside their own home. This choice of clothing may be very different to the clothing they would normally wear outside. VI. Reading Comprehension (16 marks)

Read the following passage then answer the questions below:

Who do you think is the most successful? Who do you think is the least successful? In order to answer these questions, we first need to define success. Everyone has a different definition. Many of us place great value on performance, on achievements, or on reaching various goals. Others associate success with material goods, measuring it by how much one can get. Others measure success by how much they can contribute to the well-being of their families, or to the community and society in general. There are many other definitions, but mostly success is associated with becoming rich, famous, and respected at work. Yet, it doesn't have to be that way.

Being successful could mean simply being satisfied with oneself and one's career. For many people, a successful person is someone who feels that his or her work and life in general offer an exceptionally high degree of satisfaction.

But how does one get from here to there? How does one reach this feeling of satisfaction with life and career? It seems that successful people consistently do two things: They use their natural abilities in their work and they set career and life goals.

In other words, successful people choose careers where they can use their natural abilities, or do what comes naturally to them. For example, successful teachers are people who instinctively know how to help people learn, and the best doctors are those who know how to listen to people. Successful people know where they are starting from, and what direction they want to give their lives and careers, even if it is something as simple and wonderful as raising a happy family.

What are your natural abilities? What are your career and life goals? If you can answer these questions, you are on your way to having a successful career and life.

Read the following passage then do as required:

The study of history provides many benefits. We learn from the past. We may repeat mistakes, but, at least, we have the opportunity to avoid them. History teaches us what questions to ask about the present. Contrary to some people's view, the study of history is not the memorization of names, dates, and places. It is the thoughtful examination of the factors that have shaped the courses of human life. We can examine events from the past and then draw conclusions about current events. History teaches us about likely outcomes.

In a paragraph of FOUR sentences ONLY, summaries and paraphrase the previous passage in answer to the following question:
