Introduction

While some people consider visiting museums only for education, others believe that museums can be places for entertainment.

Many people strongly believe that visiting museums can be for both for education and entertainment. To begin with, museums have many interesting things such as beautiful manuscripts and jewellery collections. Furthermore, many museums house impressive art collections such as the Louvre Museum in Paris. Another reason is that people can see amazing sculptures from different ages like the Middle Ages. It should also be noted that museums contain antiquities, furniture, objects and paintings that are a source of pleasure for their visitors.

An example of an argumentative topic

Some people believe that the role of museums is both to educate and entertain people while others think that visiting museums is only for education.

Plan and write a report of two paragraphs (not less than 10 sentences) discussing both views and give your opinion.

On the other hand, many people believe that museums are only made for education. Because of that many people consider museums as research complexes. Not to mention that museums are important places for preserving the heritage to the coming generations. Also, many people visit museums to get new knowledge and information. More importantly, museums are appropriate places for people to share resources with the entire world.
