Read the following text carefully, then answer the questions below:

When a family climbs into a vehicle to go on a trip or even a short ride, it's important that everyone is as safe as possible. We know that terrible accidents can happen. To keep people safe, devices like seat belts and airbags have been invented and put into cars, vans and trucks.

Unfortunately, devices that are meant to save lives can be a threat to life. The airbag is such a device. Airbags were designed to inflate rapidly in an accident. They were designed to stop an average adult male who doesn't bother to fasten his seat belt from smashing into the car front glass. Therefore, they inflate at about 200 miles per hour. Airbags can be useful, but you must know and account for the dangers.

Children should not sit in the front passenger seat that has a passenger side airbag. Children are always safer in the backseat. The center back seat is the best. And of course, all passengers should use their seat belts. The day will come when vehicles are equipped with "smart airbags" that automatically adjust their force to size and weight of a passenger. But now, each of us has to be smart about these imperfect "life savers."

- a. To persuade us to follow the traffic rules.
b. To show the dangers of some life savers.
c. To tell us about the bad effects of accidents.
d. To advise kids to follow parents' instructions.

“Occasions and celebrations”

There are many occasions in our society. Some of them are religious, while the others are personal or national. Every year, Muslims celebrate the month of Ramadan. Eid Al-Fitr is a religious celebration too, it comes after Ramadan. We also celebrate weddings and birthdays. My favourite celebration is The National Day.

Celebrations are marked by happiness and joy. The family gathers in Ramadan. Moms cook variety of delicious food. We fast, pray and read The Holy Quran. In Eid Al-Fitr, people do Eid prayers. We wear new clothes. Children receive money which makes them joyous. During Hala February festival, people march in streets singing national songs and wearing national costume.
