Reading Comprehension

Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions below:

Today, some types of animals are endangered species. This means there are very few animals of that kind left on Earth. The animals could face extinction. Extinction is when all the animals of that kind die. When a type of animal is extinct, it is gone forever. One problem for animals is that their habitat is sometimes destroyed by humans. As human populations increase, more and more space is needed for people. Building areas for people to live pushed animals out of their natural homes. Forest and swamp habitats are the most threatened. Trees are cut down to make room for homes and businesses. Swamps are filled in so that neighborhoods can expand. The habitat is destroyed. The animals have nowhere else to go. Without a habitat, the number of animals begins to go down.

Humans must prevent the extinction of animals due to the loss of their habitat. We have to become more aware of animal populations when considering building and expansion projects. Other options may not be as convenient, but the survival of the animals needs to be taken into consideration. Better planning and an awareness of how human actions affect animals can make a difference. It is still possible to maintain a diverse animal population for future generations to enjoy.

Another major cause of endangerment of animals is overhunting by humans. The practice of shooting animals as a sport can quickly bring the animals to extinction. This is a worldwide problem. The governments of countries around the world must unite to agree on laws regarding animals. Some animals may have large enough populations so hunting will not endanger them. Others must be protected.

There is still hope for animals that are already on the endangered species list. Some organizations are working hard to recreate habitats for them. Breeding programs are helping animal populations' increase. We all have to be aware and think before we act. The things we do can affect more than just ourselves.

Pandas are an example of endangered species. Pandas are rare today and are protected by law in some places. Scientists study the zoo pandas in hope to learn how to save wild pandas from extinction. There are only about 700 to 1000 pandas alive in the world today.

Summary Making

Read the following passage carefully, then answer the question below:

Digital technology has made life easier and faster, but has affected real life and damaged our relationships. First, it has made people live in a virtual world. A world where members of the family no longer talk together because they are busy with their smart devices. Second, it has damaged human communication. People rely very much on their phones to ask about their friends and families. Third, digital technology has bad effects on our health. It has led to a sedentary lifestyle where the internet replaced many of our activities. For instance, we no longer need to visit shops as we can do it online. Another problem with technology is that we have become dependent on it. Today people are so attached to their devices that they cannot live without them because they rely on them in everything.

In a paragraph of FOUR sentences ONLY, summarise and paraphrase the previous passage in an answer to the following question:

Summary Making

Read the following passage carefully, then do as required:

We all have different hopes in life. Everybody wants to achieve something. In order to achieve your goal, you need to follow some steps. You need to have a clear picture of what you want to achieve. Only if you are 100% sure of what you want, you will be able to achieve it. You have to focus on your goal. You can never gain without pain. The most important thing to keep you confined to your goal is to keep yourself motivated. Write down the small obstacles that have to be crossed. Reward yourself when you have crossed your obstacle. It is important to enjoy the fruits of achieving your goal. Don't forget that success is to get up when you fall and try again more intelligently. Always remind yourself that failure is not an option. It is just a temporary setback.

VI. Reading Comprehension (16 marks)

Read the following passage then answer the questions below:

Moving to a foreign country is a scary idea for some people. This is especially true if they must leave their possessions, friends, and even families behind. Nonetheless, millions of people do this every year. Moreover, many are breaking laws in order to migrate.

The World Migration Report, published by the International Organization for Migration (IOM), says as many as 3 million unauthorized migrants were living in Europe in 1998. This is a large increase from 1991, when there were less than 2 million. The steady decrease in legal immigration is one reason for the increase in illegal movement. However, the demand for foreign labour has not decreased in many areas. The foreigners who want those jobs must immigrate illegally to work.

One way to prevent immigration is to create more jobs in the immigrants' home countries. If they can find good jobs at home, they will have no reason to immigrate. A truly global economy would mean that each country has enough jobs. Second people need to be warned against illegal immigration before they leave their home countries. If more people are educated about the risks, maybe fewer will break the law.

Measures to penalize illegal immigration are also important. The immigrants, though, are not only ones who need to be punished. Smugglers are people who transport immigrants into a country illegally. The immigrants must pay the smugglers a high fee, so smuggling immigrants is a very profitable business. Punishment needs to focus on the smugglers. Moreover, countries need to make laws together so there is a clear message to smugglers and immigrants. Finally, the laws need to be enforced. The last part of the solution needs to provide ways to return immigrants to their home countries. It is best if immigrants leave by choice. The foreign government might even provide assistance to help them return home. To fulfil this solution, governments should establish phone numbers where immigrants can call for help in returning to their countries. Additionally, governments need to consider each case. Sometimes, it might be better to let some people remain in the new country. For example, some immigrants cannot return home for political reasons.

Illegal immigration will continue to be a problem until economic prosperity and equality reaches every country. Until that day comes, countries must start to cooperate to establish a global solution including prevention, punishment, and the return of immigrants to their home countries.
