LEGO toys are very famous nowadays. They are found in all toy stores around the world. Both kids and adults love having small models of buildings, cars, and many other objects that are made of LEGO plastic bricks.

But do you know who made LEGO toys and how it started? The story started in Denmark by a man called Ole Kirk. He was a father of four sons. He was trying to earn money to make his children happy. In 1935, Ole Kirk started making his first wooden toys. He called them (LEGO). The word LEGO in Danish stands for “play well”. LEGO toys were well made but Ole Kirk’s business was not doing well.

In 1940, Ole Kirk came up with a new idea and started making the first plastic toys, which became very popular. He invented a way to connect pieces with each other to build something. He wanted kids to be smart and think of ways to invent and make models.

Thanks to Ole Kirk and his sons, kids around the world enjoy playing with LEGO. Movie makers made many movies about LEGO. There are even a lot of entertainment parks for LEGO where families can play and enjoy their time there.
