READING COMPREHENSION

Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions that follow:

One of the biggest and most expensive transportation projects in the world is bridge building. Bridges are important links that carry cars, trucks and trains across bodies of water, mountains or other roads. As a result, they have to be strong that they won't fall or, collapse.

Bridge collapses can be tragic events, leading to loss of life and serious property damage. That's why bridge engineers, designers and builders must always take their jobs very seriously. The best way for them to prevent these accidents is to understand why bridges collapse in the first place. Understanding bridge collapses can lead to major changes in the design, construction and safety of future building projects.

There are many main reasons why bridges fall. Historically, more bridges were made of wood and were much more sensitive to fire. This was particularly true of old train bridges that would sometimes catch fire and burn to the ground. Besides, a large number of bridge accidents occur during the construction of the bridge itself. These accidents are often due to an error made by the engineers, such as a miscalculation. The bridge collapses under its own weight, and this can be deadly for the workers on it at the time. Additionally, Earthquakes damage all structures, including bridges. Luckily, this kind of collapse is relatively infrequent, especially with modern bridges. Engineers have learned to design bridges in earthquake zones on areas that are much more resistant to movement. Moreover, some bridge collapses are mysteries, and engineers only realise the reasons after they do a complete research. In some cases, this could happen because low-quality material was used in the construction, or because of a problem in an important part of the bridge. In other cases, the bridge was designed only to support a certain amount of weight and no more.

The last reason for bridge collapses is boat or train crash. Both of these kinds of accidents are extremely rare, but boats and trains can cause a bridge to collapse for different reasons. With trains, it's the high speed that can bring a bridge down. With boats, it's the very large weight they have that can cause the collapse, even if they are moving very slowly when it happens.

The best way to avoid bridge failures is to plan for them. Modern technologies that can detect structural weakness, safer working environments and better designs can all help to reduce these terrible accidents.

Modern technology that can detect structural weakness, safer working environments and better designs can all help to reduce these terrible accidents.

Read the following passage, then do as required:

There are many reasons why we want to achieve success. Success is strongly related to our life plans. Achieving some milestones like graduating or getting a desired job brings us positive feelings. In addition, in many cases we want to experience benefits related with the achievement of a certain goal. This makes our success desirable and enjoyable. We shouldn't also forget that achieving success adds value to us. It is deep in our nature that we love the taste of winning. This victory can make up for all previous unpleasant experiences and failure.

In a paragraph of FOUR sentences ONLY, summarise and paraphrase the passage above in answer to the following question:

Why do we want to achieve success?

First, success helps us get good jobs and affects us positively. Second, it helps us reach our life goal and makes us happy. Third, it satisfies our natural desire to win. Finally, success encourages us to keep trying until we reach our goals.

READING COMPREHENSION

Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions below:

Air pollution is made up of gases, dust, odours, particles, smoke, fumes, and other substances which can be harmful to humans, animals, plants, and all living organisms. The air is contaminated and unclean. Air pollution affects the Earth's atmosphere. The atmosphere of the Earth is like a blanket of air which protects all living organisms. Without the atmosphere, life would not exist. The atmosphere protects living things from the heat of the Sun during the day, and at night, it prevents the warm air from escaping. Basically, the atmosphere helps keep the living things on Earth from burning up or freezing.

It is difficult to avoid the pollution in the air which is the source where people get the oxygen to breathe and live. Pollution can travel with the wind from one place to another and spread over a large number of miles. Pollution can be caused by humans, or it can also occur naturally. For example, natural pollution may come from volcanoes, forest fires, windstorms, pollen in the air, and other sources in nature.

The three main causes of pollution by humans include the release of smoke and fumes from manufacturing plants and various industries. Power plants that release carbon monoxide and furnaces that burn waste are two examples of man-made pollution. Gasoline refineries also release dangerous chemicals in the air called hydrocarbons. The second cause is the burning of fossil fuels such as from cars, trucks, trains, airplanes. This type of pollution occurs often because people rely on transportation every day. Another main cause of pollution is from household and farming chemicals. On farms, crop dusting may pollute the air, homes may be sprayed with chemical to kill bugs or to help the grass grow.

There are several effects of air pollution including acid rain, which is when rain is mixed with the pollution in the air. This acid rain can cause harm to trees, animals, fish, and other living organisms. It can cause problems with breathing and irritation to the eyes, nose, or throat. Sometimes people can also get headaches or have allergic reactions. Long term effects can include lung cancer, heart disease and other health problems.

A- From a, b, c and d, choose the correct answer:

1- The best title for the passage could be:

a- Acid Rain

b- Air Pollution

c- Water Pollution

d- Farming Chemicals

2- The underlined word “man-made” in the 3rd paragraph is closest in meaning to:

a- useful

b- natural

c- artificial d- several

3- The underlined word “it” in the 1st paragraph refers to:

b- day

c- night

d- atmosphere

4- According to the 3rd paragraph, one of the main causes of pollution by humans is:

a- the eruption of volcanoes.

b- forest fires.

c- the release of smoke and fumes.

d- pollen in the air.

5- According to the text, all the following statements about air pollution are TRUE EXCEPT:

a- It is easy to avoid it.

b- It affects all living organisms.

c- It can be caused by humans or naturally.

d- It causes damage to the Earth’s atmosphere.

B- With reference to the passage, answer the following questions:

6- Why is the atmosphere very important?

The atmosphere helps keep the living things on Earth from burning up or freezing.

7- What two examples of man-made pollution given in the text?

Smoke and fumes from factories.

Carbon monoxide from power plants and furnaces.

8- Why can't we escape pollution in the air?

Because air is everywhere and pollution spreads with the wind.

9- How does acid rain affect living organisms?

It harms trees, animals, fish, and other living things.

It can cause breathing problems, eye irritation, and health issues.

Whales are the largest animals in the world, even larger than some species of dinosaurs. Ironically, whales are among the gentlest creatures we know. There are people who go through great length to help them. Whales live in the ocean but in terms of behaviour, they are more similar to humans than fish. First, they live in family groups and they even travel in groups when they have to migrate from cooler to warmer waters. Second, the young stay with their parents for as long as fifteen years. Third, whales are known not to desert the ill or injured members; instead, they cradle them. Finally, female whales have very strong maternal instincts.
