Reading Comprehension

Read the following passage then answer the questions below:

Cats played an important role in ancient Egypt. Ancient Egyptians believed that cats protected their life, and they took cats as pets. The popularity of Egyptian cats is found in the many ancient Egyptian paintings and carved stone statues.

Cats and Egypt share a long and interesting history. Many cat experts believe that ancient Egyptians were the first to keep cats at home. At first, it was a practical matter as cats were brought in to protect homes from pests like rats and cockroaches. Eventually though, ancient Egyptians; especially the wealthy, started to adopt cats as pets.

Paintings on tombs and other buildings show spotted, slender cats, which are believed to be the first domestic cats. It is believed that these early Egyptian cats were the ancestors of the Egyptian Mau. This kind is not as well-known as other cat kinds.

Whoever killed a cat in ancient Egypt was put to death. Amazingly there were also laws preventing the exportation of cats. Ancient Egyptians loved cats and were very sad whenever any of the family cats died. Cats were kept and even mummified after death. Cat tombs have been discovered along the River Nile and cat mummies can be found in the tombs of many Egyptians.

Nowadays, cats are part of the homes of many people around the world. People love their company. Some can't live without having cats as friends. They take good care of them by providing food and taking them to doctors when necessary.

- From the paintings on tombs and other buildings, cat tombs have been discovered along the River Nile and cat mummies can be found in the tombs of many Egyptians.

Happiness can be found in harmony with what you think, what you say, and what you do.”

Plan and write a report of two paragraphs (not less than 12 sentences) about (Happiness) explaining the different sources of happiness and the importance of happiness for the individuals and the society.

NB: (Your writing should include a topic sentence, supporting details and a conclusion)

Happiness can be found in harmony with what you think, what you say, and what you do. There are many sources of happiness. One of the biggest sources are family and friends. Another source is being healthy and strong. Having a dream and working to achieve it brings you happiness. One more source is to have a good work and enough money.

Happiness is very important in our life. It helps us to relieve stress. Happiness reduces the risk of disease and help us have a healthy life. Happy people offer more help to others in their society. They are successful in their lives. Happiness to me is to have fun and enjoy small and big moments with the people you love.
