Read the following passage, then answer the questions below:

"Green" is more than just a colour; it is magic that makes you strong and provides you with the positive energy that you need to go on in your life. Wouldn't you be relaxed if you saw green fields? If yes, just "Go green": doing anything that is good for the environment which is the foundation of life on Earth.

The benefits of green areas are many. In fact, they are important to have cool and clean air, which is full of oxygen. This leads to an important thing: good health for us as human beings and the animals around us.

The first step starts from us at home, like using fewer electric machines and lights. We should have shorter showers. Moreover, we can think of reducing the amount of paper that we use; paper is made of wood and doing that means we are saving trees.

If we cannot reduce the amount of something, we can use it again. For example, we can use the long cardboard box of a lamp as a pencil holder on your desk. Last comes recycling which means taking the waste and changing it into new objects, instead of throwing it away; this, of course, needs special machines and procedures.

Nobody has to remind you that our Earth is dear and valuable; we should work hard to save it in order to enjoy living on it and to make sure it stays healthy for kids in the future. Reduction, re-using and recycling are the key to protecting it.

Do you often use shampoo or put ketchup on your food? Have you ever visited a sauna? If you think these words are originally English, you'd better think again. In fact, each of these words comes from a different language!

Shampoo, for example, is actually a word from the Hindi language. This word originally meant "massage." In hair salons in India, a barber, who cuts hair, would massage your head while washing your hair. Over time, British people in India began using this word to mean a liquid that cleans hair.

Almost everyone knows what ketchup is. People all over the world like to pour this tomato sauce on French fries or sandwiches. The word "ketchup" is originally Chinese, from the word "ketsiap," which referred to a type of fish sauce. In the 1600s, British sailors brought this fish sauce to Europe. Over time, people modified the sauce by adding tomato flavour to it, but the name basically stayed the same.

A sauna is a small room used as a hot-air or steam bath for cleaning and refreshing the body. The word "sauna" comes from the Finnish language. During the Olympic games held in Finland in 1952, athletes from Britain and Germany saw Finnish athletes using sauna after training. They used it too, and introduced it to their countries. Later, people all over Europe began using this style of bathing. Nowadays, the word "sauna" is used to describe any kind of steam room.

B) Reading Comprehension (16 Marks)

Read the following passage, then answer the questions below:

It is bad to have food stuck between your teeth for long periods. This is because food attracts germs that produce harmful substances which may hurt your teeth and gums. Flossing helps to remove the food that gets stuck between your teeth. It has been widely accepted that the use of floss has a favourable effect on food remains removal and disease prevention more than regular brushing.

The American Dental Association which provided many researches on dental health issues, reports that up to 80% of food remains can be removed with flossing. This fact explains why flossing helps to keep your mouth healthy, but some doctors say that it can be also good for your heart. It may seem strange that something you do for your teeth can have any effect on your heart.

Doctors explained that the germs which hurt your teeth can leave the mouth and travel into other parts of your body. For instance, germs that get into the blood can attack your heart. Another idea is that when there are too many germs in your mouth, the body tries to fight against them. For some reason, the way the body fights these mouth germs may end up weakening the heart over time.

Some doctors think that people who have bad flossing habits also have heart problems, and people who have good flossing habits have healthy hearts. The theory that flossing your teeth helps to keep your heart healthy might not be true. But every doctor agrees that flossing is a great way to keep your teeth healthy.
